The conference will focus on the management of persistent musculoskeletal pain by highlighting ("profiling") those patients/conditions which are likely to respond to various interventions - both high and low-tech. Education will be via expert plenary sessions, interactive peer-review sessions and discussions, and practical workshops. There will be a pre-conference workshop presented by an international expert in prolotherapy.

The trade exhibition will be a valuable source for updates and information on products, services and equipment available to support diagnosis, management and treatment of musculoskeletal pain.
